T1V, Inc. Announces the Loss of Co-Founder and CEO Michael Feldman

T1V friend, colleague, and CEO Michael Feldman died on June 5, 2023. Mike was the co-founder of T1V, and served as its President and CEO for 15 years.

CHARLOTTE, NC June 6, 2023 - With extreme sorrow and tremendous loss, T1V, Inc. (“T1V” or the “Company”) today announced the passing of its co-founder and CEO, Mike Feldman.

Mike, 61, was tragically killed outside of his home in Huntersville, North Carolina. The circumstances remain under police investigation.

Mike co-founded the software company with Jim Morris in late 2007 to counter the isolating effect and changes to group dynamics that began when iPhones were introduced. He founded T1V to counter this trend, and focused on creating large, touchscreen experiences that would help bring groups together. That was the genesis for what T1V would become - a visual collaboration company on a mission to help teams collaborate anytime, anywhere.

Mike built the Company from a three-person operation running out of a house to the global organization it is today headquartered in Charlotte, North Carolina. Under Mike’s stewardship, the Company built a robust intellectual property portfolio around its patented touch technology, with 19 patents issued and several more under review. The Company also expanded operations overseas, opening an international office in 2018 to meet global demand. Today, T1V’s ThinkHub® visual collaboration software is a leading platform adopted by some of the biggest brands across architecture and design, construction and engineering, technology, life sciences, and other markets.

T1V stands for ‘a team with one vision.’ Despite his achievements in technology and business, Mike was most proud of the people who made T1V a team, and the Company’s customers. Mike took great pride in the T1V culture and values, which will live on through the Company.

The leadership team at T1V is committed to completing Mike’s vision for the Company and the Board of Directors of the Company has named Adam Loritsch Acting CEO in the aftermath of Mike’s passing.

Mike is survived by his wife and two daughters.
